Interns Of the Month

Kei Takahaski '24

International Political Economics

Brandie Ray '23

Biochemistry - Public Health Advocacy

Elijah Weaver '25

International Politics

Kei, Brandie, and Elijah received Super Internship funding to support their participation in the Shepherd Higher Education Consortium on Poverty (SHECP) program this summer. SHECP encourages the study of poverty as a complex social problem, by expanding and improving educational opportunities for college students in a wide range of disciplines and career trajectories.

Kei worked with New American Pathways, Atlanta, GA, a non-profit organization supporting refugees and immigrants. Kei was able to participate in programming teaching financial literacy and assisting with clients' resettlement in the United States. As a result of this internship, Kei has become more interested in working for the UNHCR to improve the lives of those people in the world.

Brandie worked at Covenant House, Charleston, WV, as a case manager conducting intake assessments to address areas of homelessness and health equity divisions. Brandie also helped manage the food pantry by receiving food orders and organizing the storage room. Brandie plans to attend medical school.

Elijah worked with Community Solutions, Washington, DC, a nonprofit organization that combats homelessness and poverty through the engagement of communities. Elijah was able to assist residents with the coordination and implementation of peer-led initiatives that were both of interest to them and beneficial to building community.

To learn more about the SHECP program and more about the above opportunities, please join us for the next session of Internship Presentations, Oct. 11, 6:00pm in the Career Development & Alumni Engagement Suite.

October Trivia

Christopher Columbus is often credited with finding North America while looking for the West Indies. However, a Norse explorer found it first, landing at a place called "Vinland." Who is this man, and what day is he celebrated? Email answers to careers@juniata.edu
